The End of the World?

Have you ever really thought about this statement? There has been a lot of talk about the Mayan prediction of the end of the world on 20th December 2012. Perhaps they really did run out of rock on which to extend the calendar further J .

But seriously speaking, we have to experience a substantial shift in consciousness as a planet and in many ways this has and is happening as we speak. Every day we hear of Mother Nature echoing our ego by correcting what we have given her. More and more water issues are arising and will continue too. Exceptional rain, natural gas storms, volcanoes, tornadoes, many more people are inflicted and unwell at young ages, financial systems breaking down and dictators being over thrown. So is it the end of the world? Perhaps it is rather the end of the world as we know it.

2013 will bring us a different world with different consciousness but we have been working up to this over many years and the spiral towards this greater consciousness is now a spinning top.

You will notice that at times it is hard to take a step forward and that you are very tired. Try to see what is around you and acknowledge that it is a general pattern as we all try to re-set our decoders for the changes happening now and the changes to happen. You could also just need a sleep of course because you are over-doing it.

Capitalism – here to stay?

It is sobering to think that we continue to talk about economic growth as being the only way forward but this very principle will eventually destroy us because it involves the consumption of non-renewable resources. And to this end we have now become proud of products we produce that have to short life cycle - the so called planned obsolescence. In fact the quicker it falls apart the "cleverer" we think we are. What happened to quality and pride in what we do? It went out the window when we lost pride in ourselves and started seeing ourselves as shallow and valueless.

It could be the greatest cancer of all as we isolate ourselves in the quest for more "things" and yet because of this ego we will ultimately have "no-thing". The current system only rewards the few and is totally at the expense of our environment and fellow man and mostly ourselves.

So what we will see in the future? Perhaps we will see businesses starting with a focus on serving humanity and the environment. They will look very different but will require a complete mindset shift away from the culture of self reward, vanity and external gratification.

And we will earn from them and be content that profit is not the driver to satisfy the few at the expense of the many. It should be that those that are putting in the effort should be rewarded. And that happens regardless because the universe always gives you back what you give it if you give it unconditionally and with a true and good intention. And this does not always come back in monetary terms but in many different ways.

So people will be "wealthy" but the definition of wealthy will change considerably.

Down to Earth

When was the last time you washed your car. Many of you are thinking why would I do that - I'd rather have it washed. Well it keeps us down to earth not only because of the humble act but because we have our feet on the ground, our hands in water and our heads in the now as we concentrate on the task at hand.

Tee Hee

After a quarrel, a wife said to her husband, "You know, I was a fool when I married you."

And the husband replied, "Yes, dear, but I was in love and didn't notice it." Yikes!!

Until Next Time

There are many ways to live life and many ways to achieve the same thing. Perhaps it is time for us to embrace this fact and realize that we can be right or we can be happy.
